Let's talk about Wedding Bands Singapore

Let's start with the basics. When judging the diamond, you need to consider the "Four Cs." These are the Carat weight, Cut, Color, and Clarity. Generally, it is advised that neither the gem nor the band outshine one another. Rather, they should look good with one another! Like yourself and the missus.

As you'll soon read, not all rings are made the same. A different shop, or boutique, will style their rings differently. No two rings are similar as different brands have different design philosophies. Even within the same brand, they can come from a different collection than another.

All of the above have a big impact on price. The boutiques with more renown can be more expensive because of their pedigree or because they look nicer. So take a gander at some of the rings we found from the top ateliers in Singapore.

What We Like

One of the best we love is their Passionne L amour Collection series, which features their band in 18k gold, white and rose. Its unique colour differentiated with its white and rose gold brings out the brilliant taste to wear a symbolic band signifying a "till death do us part" vow you will be making to each other!
