Shopping for wedding rings has never been easier with our list of well-loved jewellers in Singapore. Psst, they carry engagement rings too, so you can shop for both at the same time!

Ring shopping is undoubtedly one of the more exciting tasks on your wedding to-do list, but it can also be a daunting endeavour for brides and grooms who are shopping for fine jewellery for the first time in their lives. From where to start looking to what you should look out for and how much you should set aside, shopping for engagement rings or wedding bands can quickly become tricky and confusing if you don't know where or how to start.

explanation on what a commercial, bespoke and high-end jeweller refers to.

WHAT'S THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN A COMMERCIAL, BESPOKE AND HIGH-END JEWELLER?

In Singapore, there are three groups of jewellers you can get your wedding ring shopping done at - commercial, bespoke and high-end jewellers. To find what you are looking for, you've got to learn the difference between these three types of jewellers. Commercial jewellers are easily accessible and available at most shopping malls, including those in the heartlands. They offer a ready selection of rings and jewellery for couples to choose from and are perfect for those of you who are searching for a fuss-free shopping experience. Bespoke jewellers, on the other hand, specialise in customising one-of-a-kind jewellery. They are perfect for couples who are looking for unique wedding jewellery designed to flatter and reflect them as an individual and a couple.

High-end jewellers are perfect for couples with a bigger budget and are looking for classic and trademark ring settings for their once-in-a-lifetime. These jewellers have been around for centuries and responsible for numerous exquisite and quality engagement and wedding rings, among other forms of jewellery, that have become iconic today.

Now, there is no right or wrong type of jeweller. It all boils down to what you are looking for and your budget. Once you've figured that out, scroll down to our list and shortlist the jewellers who meet your needs!
